Education Analytics Recognized for Efforts to Expand Ed-Fi Enabled Services to 1.4 million Students Nationwide

[MADISON, September 30, 2024] — In recognition of the impactful work to improve data use in K-12 education, Education Analytics (EA) has been named a 2025 Ed-Fi Alliance Premier Partner. Education Analytics has led initiatives to streamline data processes and ensure educators have access to actionable insights that support student achievement. By working with more than 200 local education agencies serving approximately 1.4 million students across seven states, EA has enhanced the quality and usability of data across to foster more informed decision-making in education. “We’ve utilized the Ed-Fi Data Standard to build statewide infrastructure in South Carolina, look to onboard more than 800 districts in Texas with the Texas Education Exchange, and will work with half of California’s districts in the coming year, in addition to the other states we partner with. This empowers educators to make data-driven decisions that directly benefit students,” said Marlena Holden, director of brand & communications.

The 2025 Premier Partners were announced at the Ed-Fi Alliance Summit on September 30, 2024. These partners have been instrumental in developing and scaling tools that improve data quality, security, and interoperability in K-12 systems nationwide. “Our partners are at the forefront of transforming education through better data,” said Sean Casey, director of vendor partnerships, Ed-Fi Alliance. “We’re excited to recognize the incredible work they are doing to improve educational outcomes.” The complete list of 2025 Premier Partners includes Aeries, ASCENDER, Education Analytics, EdGraph, Infinite Campus, and Skyward.
